Albert Johnson

Although Mr. Johnson does not show up in any census until 1910, it is apparent that he was an active member of Truckee since the early 1870s as evidence by the following news articles and other items that were located. His obituary indicates that he was a resident of Truckee for over forty years and was well known and beloved. He was well known for his fishing abilities and was a trusted guide and also as an amenable host at the Donner Hotel and Saloon. "Historical Statements" indicate he worked for five years for Stewart McKay at the Old Truckee Hotel¹ as a Porter in his early years at Truckee. For the next 35 years he lived at the head of Donner Lake running his resort and acting as a fishing guide and educator of Truckee weather.

Mr. Johnson was born c1817 in Kentucky and died in Nevada City at the County Hospital, April 11, 1911 at the age of 94. If the “historical statements” are correct he would have arrived in Truckee by 1871. The only difference in data matching is that in 1871 the American House had not been built as yet and was opened in 1872 by J.M. Mathews, Mr. McKay did not own it until 1879. Also Mr. McKay did not own the Truckee Hotel until the 1880s. During the time Mr. Johnson would have arrived the Truckee Hotel was owned and operated by J.F. Moody. So, it is difficult, at this time, to actually determine where Mr. Johnson started his life in Truckee. A news article dated July 1927 regarding Wally Gelatt and Donner Lake² states he worked for Mr. Campbell at his hotel at the east end of Donner Lake. What is known and verified is that Mr. Johnson was located in Voter Registrations from 1875 thru 1908 in Truckee and numerous other articles indicated that he did operate a business at Donner Lake and was well known and admired for many decades.

¹ Stewart McKay did not own the Truckee Hotel until the 1880s

Fish Not Biting.

• Albert Johnson was down from Donner Lake Saturday and says that the trout are not taking a hook at all. The cause of this he explains is that Donner Lake is way above high-water mark and the site of the big flat at the head of the lake is covered with water five feet deep. The trees make a forest in the lake and a boat can be rowed through the big grove. Trout will not bite a hook when they can go into the woods and get all they can eat of bugs, worms, grasshoppers, etc. — Truckee Republican.

PECULIAR ACTION OF SMALL CREEK

Small Creek Emptying Into Donner Lake Goes Dry During Day Time But Flows at Night

- Albert Johnson the colored veteran, who conducts a summer resort at the west end of Donner Lake was in Truckee yesterday afternoon and in conversation with a representative of the Republican stated that the small stream which empties into Donner Lake is acting very peculiar. For the past three weeks the creek has been drying up between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. and during the remaining time plenty of water flows through the natural channel. Why the water does not run during the middle of the day is what puzzles the old landlord. During the evening, night and morning about four to six inches of water flows while during the middle of the day the stream goes absolutely dry. Thousands of small trout have been killed by the peculiar action of the creek. Mr. Johnson believes that the water sinks. About 300 yards above his house there is a normal supply of water but all of a sudden it goes out of sight. Mr. Johnson has been residing in that vicinity for fifteen years and this is the first time he ever observed the stream running by night and drying up by daylight.

TO LIVE IN TENTS DONNER LAKE SHORE
- Mrs. C. F. Weber making arrangements for San Francisco families to live in tents around Donner Lake during Summer months
- Mrs. C. F. Weber of San Francisco, stopped over in Truckee while on her way to McKinneys resort on Lake Tahoe, She says there is now considerable talk among the people who are now living in tents in the city to come to this place and live during the summer months while homes are being built for them in Frisco. She says that if the people of the community would make some arrangements for suitable locations many families would come up here about the first of June and remain until cold weather compelled them to return home The cool weather, splendid water and the beautiful environments, if properly advertised, would result in hundreds of women and children residing in the Sierra Mountains for the next three months. In fact, she said, was requested to see if I could not find a suitable location for several families, and someone to cook for them while they were up here. She intends to make a visit to Donner Lake and see if arrangements cannot be made with Albert Johnson for several families to camp near his place. There are many locations around Donner Lake that these people could reside during the summer months, if someone would only head a movement to secure the ground for them to live on.
William Kennedy, one time night watchman tor the Truckee Lumber Company has written an interesting letter to the Daily Gate City, published at Keokuk, Iowa. Mr. Kennedy left here about one year ago for the Beckwith section and from there drilled hack to Los Angeles. His story concerning this section of the state contain several columns. Part of the article in his story mention is made of Albert Johnson who conducts a resort on the north side of Donner Lake and who has resided there for many years. The following is only published in part: A character of the Sierras, often seen but more often misunderstood, is the hermit, whose lonely cabin is as likely to be found clinging to some precipitous slope, concealed among the big trees in the bottom of some deep dark cannon, or perched on the top of some lofty mountain, Silhouetted against the sky as by a roadway or a trail. Because such a one prefers a home in the primeval forest to a domicile in the seething centers of population, he is generally called “eccentric” or “crazy,” or in some instances is looked upon as one who, because of some unpardonable sin, has been banished by human society and, an accusing conscience to spend the remainder of his days in solitude, to be consumed by loneliness, melancholy and ??

But I must say that a careful study of the hermit, on my travels through the mountains, has not in any way confirmed this popular impression concerning him. On the contrary, I have been greatly surprised to find the hermit of the Sierras a man of far better parts than I had ever heard or supposed. Albert Johnson, who has lived in a cabin on the shore of Donner Lake, Nevada County, for more than forty years, I found to be both the moral and intellectual equal, as far as I am competent to judge of the average man, either white or colored, who has had the advantages of the schools and long association with his fellow men in enlightened communities. It was late in the spring (or rather early in the summer, the altitude here being something like six thousand feet) when I called at Mr. Johnson’s cabin. There still was snow covering the ground between the road and the front door, and as no tracks were visible, I thought perhaps there might be a rear entrance. On passing around a corner of the cabin, I saw Mr. Johnson, a rugged looking man, gazing into the lake. He looked up, with neither a start nor a stare, but quietly, and with a smile, which I soon discovered was not put on for the occasion; it was simply grown onto Mr. Johnson’s face—as much a part of the man as his nose or his ears. Without that smile I am sure the people of the nearby town of Truckee, where he has gone for his mail for forty years, would not know him; they would certainly declare that a new colored man had come to town. Mr. Johnson insisted on my taking some refreshments after my long tramp over the mountains, and we went into the cabin. Of edibles there was no lack.
Bacon and beans were especially in evidence and cooked to suit the king’s taste. I asked Mr. Johnson where he got his supplies, meaning, of course, at what point on the railroad—Truckee or Summit. He declared that everything came to him “from God’s bountiful hand.” “He has kept me in dis hyah wilderness for forty years.” he said, “and I know I shall not want; He keeps me every hour.” Mr.
Johnson volunteered a little information concerning his long and peaceful life. He first saw the light in one of the states; I think he said Georgia. He did not seem altogether certain as to the exact date of his birth; at least he did not fix the date in his conversation with me. Even now, more than six feet in height straight as an arrow, and with broad, square shoulders, he is, to all outward appearances, a perfect specimen of physical manhood. One can easily imagine the great value that must have been placed upon this colored man in the days of his youth and early manhood, especially when his manifest faithfulness and staying qualities are taken into consideration, by them who were so fortunate as to own him in the old slavery times. Although born a slave and kept in bondage until about the time that Lee handed over his sword, he seems to cherish only the happiest memories of his old master and mistress, who, in addition to taking good care of him. seems to have imparted to him the very best of precept. He expressed the belief that no one had ever lived a happier life than he, and he looked it. He not only thought this world a very good one but had a very good opinion generally of the people who live in it, only regretting that some young colored fellows, who had been along from time to time and robbed him, while enjoying his hospitality, could not behave better in “dis hyah day and generation-.“ On his way to California, before days of transcontinental railroads, Mr. Johnson footed it across the Isthmus of Panama. He retains a very vivid recollection of the character of the country along the route of the new Panama canal. He said, “It is no good, no good, absolutely no place for God’s people to live, from one end of the road to the other,” He managed to get to San Francisco on a slow sailing vessel. From there he struck inland, resolved “with God’s help,” to make a home for himself in the; new Eldorado But, when he scrambled down from the summit of the high Sierra into the little Donner Lake basin, there he found one already made —his for the taking. And there he has remained ever since, enjoying to the fullest what he rightly believes to be God’s richest blessings—health freedom, contentment, an abundance of fresh fish and wild fowl, and above all, an abiding faith that when called upon to leave his earthly habitation it will be to take up his residence in “a mansion in the sky.”

ALBFRT JOHNSON CAME NEAR DYING

Survives Untold Sufferings All Alone in Cabin on Banks Donner Lake Midst Snow from 6 to 8 Feet Been.

- Albert Johnson colored, known to everyone who travels over the Summit road, a pioneer resident on Donner Lake came very near passing to the great beyond, alone in his resort without assistance unable to communicate with anyone during the time the snow storms were at their worst and the ground was snow covered the deepest. This bit of news was brought to Truckee by William Johnson who made a visit to "Old Albert’s" place last Wednesday. Mr. Johnson said he had been very ill and for several days thought death would relieve him of his sufferings. He had fuel and grub, but rheumatic grip held him in bed, until starvation urged him to use every effort to keep life in his body. Suffering untold agony, he managed to start a fire and prepare something to eat. When he retired to bed, he was again compelled to lay there several days without water and food. This experience has taught Albert a lesson and, in a few days, he will come to Truckee and remain until the season opens up. Albert Johnson is now past the four-score mark and has lived in this community for over 40 years. William Johnson who made the trip says the roads are in excellent condition. He believes Donner Lake is covered with a coat of ice about 12 to 18 inches thick.

AN OPEN WINTER SAYS Albert Johnson

“Colored Albert” Walked to Truckee, Thursday for the First Time for Many Years During Month of December Without Fighting Snow.

Albert Johnson, colored, who has been conducting a road house on the shores of Donner Lake for more than forty years, walked to Truckee. Wednesday evening to secure provisions for the next three months. Mr. Johnson stated that this is the mildest winter he has seen in this part of the state for over twenty years. “It is an unusual season,” continued Mr. Johnson, one of these open winters that we have here every once in a while. Think of it, holiday, and no snow on the road. I walked all the way down from my place and the road is just as open as it was in the month of June. The Good Lord has been on my side this fall as the late season gave me time to get my winter’s wood in and provisions for the cold, snowy months yet to come. I am well supplied for this winter, having provisions, wood, and a warm building to live in. I am feeling better this winter than I have for a long time. I intend to walk up this Thursday morning.” Nearly every one in this vicinity knows of Albert Johnson. He has resided in this section for over 50 years. When he first came here, he was employed as a cook in the old Truckee hotel and later accepted a position as cook on a steamer on Lake Tahoe. He is acquainted with all the pioneers of this section and his memory is good in recalling incidents that took place nearly a half century ago. He claims to be ninety-three years old. Last winter he came very near crossing the great divide, being a sufferer from rheumatism, but this year he is much better and says that his health is much improved.

ALBERT JOHNSON BROUGHT TO TRUCKEE

Party of Men go from Here to Head of Donner Lake to Rescue “Old Albert.” Has Kept Road House for 40 Years.

- Several men went to the head of Donner Lake Thursday for the purpose of bringing “old Albert”, colored, from his cabin, where the old argonaut, aged 93 years, was without food or wood for almost a week. For the past twenty years “Old Albert and his cabin have been a land mark there. This winter together with ten feet of snow, worsted him and for several days the Wilsons at Tamarack, noticed thru their telescope, that no smoke came from his cabin, and upon investigation found him destitute. Food and water were carried him for several days. Mr. Johnson has conducted a road house on the shores or Donner Lake for over forty years and everyone who has ever been to the lake knows Albert. He has resided in this section for over fifty years. When he first came here, he was employed as cook in the old Truckee hotel and later accepted a position as cook on a steamer on Lake Tahoe. Aged Pioneer Albert Johnson Gradually Sinking.

Donner Lake Famous Figure Passing Away at County Hospital at Nevada City. Old Age, 93 Years Cause of Affliction.

Albert Johnson, colored, known as the hospitable landlord of a few cabins in the cotton wood grove at the head of Donner Lake for thirty-five years or more, is gradually passing away at the county hospital at the ripe old age of ninety-three years. Last week a representative of the Republican visited the hospital for the purpose of visiting 'Albert.' He can scarcely see or hear. The poor old fellow is nothing more than skin and bones. His face is very small, and his arms and legs are as frail as a broomstick. He scarcely recognizes anyone. His memory is slow to act, and his eyes have the death glare. His only request of the attendants is to be left alone. He is gradually sinking away. Mr. Johnson has resided in this part of the state nearly forty years. When he first came here, he worked for Stewart McKay in the old Truckee hotel. After working in Truckee, he went to Lake Tahoe and was cook on one of the steamers. From that place he went to the head of Donner Lake and has resided there ever since, conducting a saloon and renting cabins to summer tourists. No individual is more widely known by residents of Nevada county than Albert Johnson

- on account of his generosity and hospitality. It is believed by the attending physician that he will not live but a few days longer.
